

EAST GERMAN REFUGEES SWAMP WEST, BERLIN—East German women and children sit outside Marienfelde camp for refugees in West Berlin amid possessions taken from the Communist controlled zone. The Aug. 8 count of refugees hit 2,021, highest daily total in eight years, West Berlin officials said. The actual number fleeing may be much higher since many did not register immediately.

Hijacking Bill Moves Forward

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill providing stiff new penalties for crime in the skies sped through the Senate Commerce Committee Tuesday.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., committee chairman, told newsmen he hoped the measure could be brought up for action in the Senate this week.

Birth Of Two (But Not Twins) Is Very Rare

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Michelle Lynn Shaffer is two minutes older than her brother Michael Lee Shaffer. And yet they are not twins, at least medically speaking.

Rhymagene Shaffer, 23, their mother, gave birth to the pair Saturday at Women's Hospital. A staff doctor described it as a "rare and interesting situation."

"The babies were conceived at different times," he explained. "They are not from the same egg. The case is unusual because ordinarily, after a woman conceives, she stops ovulating."

Hospital officials said X rays of the bone structure have confirmed suspicions that Michael Lee, who weighed in at 6 pounds, 11 ounces, was a full-term, nine-month infant, but that his sister was an eight-month baby.

Michelle weighed 4 pounds, 3 ounces, and is being kept in an incubator.

Mrs. Shaffer and her husband, Leonard, who is a window company employee, will have no trouble remembering their children's birthday. The infants arrived on the fourth birthday of their other child, Leonard Jr.

Good Support Is Seen For Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's long-range foreign aid program got support Tuesday from a prominent Republican senator and an optimistic report from House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

It will emerge from Congress in "pretty good shape," Rayburn predicted after he and other Democratic leaders conferred with President Kennedy at breakfast. "I see no reason in principle that they should not support the same proposal when made by this administration," he added.

Sen. Thurston Morton of Kentucky, former GOP national chairman, gave the program his support, noting it was "identical in principle" to what former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had advocated.

5-Year Plan
Kennedy is seeking authority to borrow from the Treasury to finance a five-year $8.8-billion loan program to aid struggling new nations. He wants to put this foreign aid on a long-range planning basis.

Morton, in a speech to the Senate, said 21 Republicans now in the Senate supported Eisenhower's similar proposal in 1957. "I see no reason in principle that they should not support the same proposal when made by this administration," he added.

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro announced Tuesday night harsh new economic controls over the spending habits of millions of Cubans, limiting the total bank deposits they are allowed and restricting the amount of cash they can withdraw.

Refugee Flow Is Highest In Eight Years

BERLIN (AP)—Refugees flowed into West Berlin from East Germany Tuesday at the highest rate in eight years despite new Communist police measures to seal off the escape hatch to freedom.

What effect Soviet Premier Khrushchev's speech on Berlin had on the refugees was not clear. But it was obvious that Khrushchev's firm insistence on Western access routes to Berlin did little to encourage them to remain in East Germany.

During the 24 hours that ended at 8 a.m. Tuesday, 2,021 refugees had registered in West Berlin, the highest number since May 28, 1963, when 3,973 were registered just before the East German revolt against the Communists.

There were reports of Communist police prowling East Germany in disguised radio cars, of stricter checks at the city limits, and of new Communist rules limiting trips to the capital.

Information Bureau West said that at Schoenefeld, on the southeast city limits, the border police unit was increased to 65 men and 15 plainclothesmen are on constant street patrol with walkie-talkie radios hidden in their cars.

The private West Berlin intelligence agency also reported the Communists are still sentencing people to jail for "preparing illegal flight" or encouraging others to go.

Placards also were going up in East Berlin and neighboring towns under Red rule, reminding people with jobs in West Berlin they must register with the Communists or face jail sentences.

The Communists protested when Mayor Willy Brandt's West Berlin city government proposed giving them some of their own medicine. It ordered a check to prevent Communist supporters from taking advantage of the wage fund that compensates West Berliners who work in East Berlin for the low pay they get from the Communists.

Die Wahrheit, the Communist paper in West Berlin, said the Western authorities are victimizing people "suspected of being progressive."

Watching the colorful drop in the sand hills section near Camden, S.C., were Secretary of the Army Ellis J. Stahr Jr., and Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert. Both expressed pleasure over the manner in which the massive air drop was handled.

The jump was the opening of Phase 2 of operation Swift Strike, Army-Air Force maneuvers designed to continue over-all training of STRAC forces, with emphasis on training field commanders and more than 5,000 air reservists and Air National Guardsmen, many of whom are on alert for possible recall to active duty.

This came with President Kennedy's decision of last week to sell the Army, Air Force and Marines by 250,000 men in preparation for a possible showdown with the Soviet Union over Berlin.

Meanwhile, the Navy was completing plans which may result in adding about 80 ships of all types to the operating fleet.

The Army's announcement said that three divisions—the 1st and 2nd Infantry and 2nd Armored—will be reorganized into regular combat divisions. Their present mission is training and they are at less than half the strength required for combat readiness.

Finally, about noon, Richard Flynn returned from lunch to claim both the Cadillac and the lion. While police held back a crowd of about 300, Flynn explained he is an animal trainer from Overland, Mo., and that he had raised the 16-month-old male lion, whose name is King Kado.

With Flynn was Bon Bon Bass, 25, of the Bronx. She used to make a living by inserting her head in the lion's mouth. She and Flynn split up, however, and the luncheon date was arranged to truck from the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The car doors were closed but not locked and ASPCA agents shoved a pail of fresh water into the back seat where the lion was chained. The beast took a drink.

NATO Will Stand Firm On Berlin

PARIS (AP)—Members of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance endorsed Tuesday the policy of the big Western powers of standing firm on Berlin and keeping the door open to negotiation with Moscow only "on a reasonable basis."

Speaking on behalf of the major powers, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk reported to a closed session of the NATO council on his weekend conference with his British, French and West German colleagues.

Rusk and other Allied officials evaded all comment on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's speech Monday night calling for negotiations but insisting on Communist demands.

One Exception
There was one possible exception to this no comment policy. Lord Home, the British foreign secretary, said negotiation for its own sake would be useless. He did not mention Khrushchev's speech but may have had it in mind.

Rusk's report included recommendations that allied forces on the continent be brought up to full strength with the addition of perhaps 75,000 to 80,000 men in the near future, and a possible buildup to 30 divisions later on. This is a long-term NATO goal.

The council agreed to consult further on the subject and then reaffirmed the policy adopted by the NATO foreign ministers earlier this year in Oslo. This called for a "peaceful and just" solution of the Berlin and German problems, on the basis of self-determination.

Lord Home told newsmen on leaving for London there would be no point in undertaking talks with the Soviet Union unless proper spadework offered some hope of success and an improvement in the situation.

Late in the day, Rusk called on French President Charles de Gaulle amid rumors the United States is trying to smooth the dispute between France and Tunisia on the Bizerte naval base.

Cuba Blasts Kennedy's Inter-Am. Aid Program

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—Fidel Castro's bewhiskered economic chief accused the United States Tuesday night of plotting assassination in Latin America. He in turn was called an assassin by a shouting anti-Castroite. Fist fights followed at the turbulent session of the inter-American economic and social conference.

The charges and counter-charges arose over President Kennedy's multibillion-dollar Alliance for Progress program.

The attack on the program by Cuba's economic minister, Ernesto Guevara, set off fist fights both in and outside the conference hall at this plush resort.

As Guevara finished his violent two-hour, 15 minute speech, a bespectacled spectator, identified as Max Azicri-Levy, a member of an anti-Castro revolutionary front, shouted "assassin."

Hustled Outside
He was hustled outside by two security guards amid a flurry of swinging fists. In the lobby a second fist fight broke out between anti-Castro sympathizers and the guards.

While the man was shouting "assassin", two other Cuban exiles leaped on the stage and shouted insults at Guevara as he walked away.

Police took three men to the police station.

Azicri-Levy was accredited to the conference as a reporter for the newspaper Avance of Havana, now published in Miami, Fla.

Launching the longest oration of the conference, the khaki-clad Guevara accused the United States of conniving in an assassination plot against Prime Minister Castro's brother Raul, which he said was intended as an excuse for U.S. military action against Cuba.

Also he hinted the United States was implicated in some way in the slaying last May 30 of Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo, the Dominican dictator.

Guevara also accused President Kennedy of bad faith in the ill-fated anti-Castro invasion of Cuba last April, which he called a "pirate attack."

Ridiculous Alliance
He ridiculed the Alliance for Progress plan as a scheme to give "latrines" to the poor and said the United States was "pulling the legs" of the delegates.

"Cuba is the golden egg hen," he said. "While Cuba is there, the United States is ready to give." "A little push," he added, and Latin America would get the $30 billion in aid Castro had suggested two years ago. The figure of $20 billion in U.S. aid has been mentioned here by American delegates.

Guevara drew a standing-room-only crowd, largest of the conference, as he rose dramatically and began his off-the-cuff speech. Other delegates had remained in their seats while delivering carefully prepared texts.

He drew applause in a left-handed way, once when he declared "naturally we respect private property" in Cuba, and again when he sided with some delegates who oppose an hemispheric information agency to publicize the Alliance for progress plan. Guevara said the purpose of the agency was the "regimentation of thought and, if possible, preparation of military aggression against Cuba."

Guevara denounced the whole conference—called to implement a 50-year development plan for Latin America—as a political maneuver aimed against Cuba and against "the example Cuba is setting for all Latin America."

"I dissent in the name of Cuba from almost all the affirmations thus far made here," he declared. He then charged that "antirevolutionary groups from Guantanamo," the U.S. naval base in Cuba, lay in wait for Raul Castro, the commander of the armed forces, at two places, "to kill him."

Guevara said the plotters intended to attack Raul as he traveled from his home to a parade on July 26, the day Cuba celebrated the eighth anniversary of Castro's revolutionary movement. Raul spoke at Santiago in eastern Cuba that day. The plotters he said, intended to dynamite the speaker's stand if they failed to kill him en route.

"And a few hours later North American mortars would start bombarding the base at Guantanamo Bay. Then the United States would be compelled to defend the base," Guevara said, explaining that the plot was intended as a cover for an American attack.

Authorizes Loan
Of U. S. Warships
WASHINGTON (AP)—The House authorized the President Tuesday to lend 16 destroyers to friendly nations to bolster anti-submarine defenses throughout the world.

The bill, continuing a program that has been in effect since 1953, passed by a voice vote. It now goes to the Senate.

It authorizes the allocation of six destroyers and destroyer escorts to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, six to Nationalist China, two to Pakistan and two for use in an emergency by any ally. The loan authorization would expire after five years.

The bill also continues for five years existing loans of two destroyers each to Portugal and Spain.

Ex-NATO Chief
To Visit Peiping
LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, former deputy commander of NATO forces in Europe, said Tuesday night he will travel to Communist China next month as a personal guest of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Montgomery, now retired from the British army after an illustrious career, said he will go on to Japan and Canada after his visit to Peiping.

The purpose of his trip "is entirely my business," Montgomery said reporters.

Good Morning!
You may favor peace, but did you ever see anybody escape a tornado merely by favoring good weather?

Luxury Liner
Strikes Whale
STAVANGER, Norway (AP)—The Norwegian-America Line luxury liner Oslofjord hit a whale while sailing the Atlantic at full speed from New York to Norway Aug. 2, Capt. Bjørnulf Egeland reported Tuesday.

The 543 passengers had just been served dinner, when the ship shuddered. People ran on deck. Seamen reported blood flowed in the wake of the liner.

"I have sailed since 1938, and nothing like this ever happened to me before," the captain said. "Whales usually keep their distance. That whale must have been sick."

Kado just lolled in the back seat of his Cadillac and purred.

Pond Stocked — For Youngsters

SIX HUNDRED blue gill fish were stocked in Cramer's Pond, also known as Fifth St. Pond, yesterday afternoon. Located at the rear of the new Stroud Township Municipal Building, the pond is owned by R. C. Cramer and is fed by small springs in the area.

The fish were stocked by the Pennsylvania Game Commission and were obtained through the efforts of Rep. Van D. Yetter, according to James Hazen, district fish warden.

Only young fishermen — under 16 years of age — will be permitted to fish the pond, Hazen reported.

Also stocked for young fishermen was Hay's Pond, Canadensis, where 400 blue gills were placed. The pond will be the site of a fishing contest for children Aug. 19 sponsored by both the Barrett Rotary Club and the Barrett Lions Club.

The contest is open to all children under the age of 16. Hand lines will be used only. The rain date is Aug. 26.

He also noted the accomplishments achieved when the VFW, American Legion, 28th Division, and World War I Veterans work as a team.

George Straka was appointed as assistant chief of staff of the Department of Pennsylvania, VFW.

Speeding Car Hits Pole; Driver Hurt

WIND GAP — A car traveling at a high rate of speed, according to witnesses, left the road on the Cherry Hill-Bushkill Center highway at 3:20 p.m. yesterday, snapped off a telephone pole, injured the driver and demolished the car.

The driver, Russell J. Weppel, 43, of 550 1/2 S. Main St., Nazareth, had the accident two miles west of Cherry Hill in Bushkill Township. He had passed a car at a high rate of speed when a truck came around a corner in the road ahead, police reported after talking to witnesses.

He veered off the right side of the highway, lost control of the car, side-swiped a telephone pole and climbed an eight-foot bank. Coming down the bank, the car hit another pole and snapped it off at the base.

The car traveled 336 feet from the time it left the highway until it came to rest.

Weppel had cuts of the forehead requiring eight stitches, a cut on the left elbow requiring four stitches, and a broken right forearm. He was taken to a Nazareth doctor, then moved to the Easton Hospital. He was released after treatment.

He will be charged with reckless driving, police said. Bushkill Township and Wind Gap police investigated. Damage to the car was estimated at $2,000, and damage to the telephone pole at $200.

Extortionist Escapes

STATE POLICE at Monroe County substations were on the lookout last night for a man who broke loose from a police trap early yesterday after attempting to extort $15,000 from an antique gun collector.

He escaped barefoot under cover of darkness into a mountainous area near Wilkes-Barre.

Road-blocks were established immediately and all police were alerted. State Police at Fern Ridge said their road-block was still in effect late last night.

The intended victim of the extortion plot, Eli Megines of Iketown, Lehman Township, reported the extortion plot to authorities.

Megines had been told by letter to leave $15,000 in a leather purse at a rural point along Route 115, and to keep going. Later, the letter said, he would be able to return and would find guns stolen from him in January.

The extortionist said that among the guns were some Megines had bought from strangers more than a year ago. The extortionist claimed the guns were stolen from their original owner, and threatened to tell police unless Megines cooperated.

Investigators said, however, Megines previously had checked, and state police told him the guns he bought from the strangers were not stolen.

Megines was accompanied in his automobile early Tuesday by state police Sgt. Edward McGroarty. They traveled until they saw a white flag on a pole, the signal that Megines was to leave the money there.

Megines left an empty purse at the scene, and after driving a short distance, let McGroarty out of the car. The state policeman saw someone pick up the purse and grabbed the man. He took the man's shoes from him to prevent him from escaping.

Nevertheless, the man bolted through the darkness barefoot, ran down a 30-foot embankment and disappeared. McGroarty said he

3 Gunmen Loot Bank Of $50,000

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—In an 11-hour operation carried out without a hitch, three gunmen looted the First West Side Bank, in suburban Omaha Tuesday of a sackful of cash—the loss may run more than $50,000—and disappeared.

A bank officer said the loss probably would run to more than $50,000. The FBI said, prior to an audit, that the loot might be in the neighborhood of $20,000 to $40,000. A bank spokesman said the audit was incomplete.

Quadros Accepts U. S. Invitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Janio Quadros of Brazil will pay a state visit to the United States in December. The White House announced Tuesday that Quadros has accepted an invitation from President Kennedy and will arrive in Washington Dec. 5.

Public Power Foes Victorious

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of atomic public power in the Northwest won another round Tuesday in the House.

That chamber instructed its delegation to a Senate-House conference to resist Senate attempts to add electric generating facilities to a plutonium reactor being built at Hanford, Wash.

The vote was 235-164, with 81 Democrats and 154 Republicans favoring the instruction and 155 Democrats and 9 Republicans opposing it.

McCormack said private utilities "have waged an aggressive lobby" against the Hanford power proposal. He noted that the Bonneville Power Administration, which would handle the project, now sells 53 per cent of its energy to private utilities and industry.

Proponents of the Hanford item also urged that, since steam is generated during plutonium production, failure to use it for public power would constitute an unjustifiable waste.

Opponents contend the Hanford proposal would mean unwarranted production of public power.

Approved by the Senate as part of a $400-million Atomic Energy Commission authorization, the public power provision had been knocked out by the House July 13 on a 178-140 nonrecorded vote.

Also added to the bill by the Senate was a $5-million atomic coal research program.

The administration favors the Hanford power item. Private power and coal interests oppose it.

One of the House conferees who will meet with a similar Senate group to iron out differences between the Senate and House versions of the AEC authorization is Rep. James Van Zandt, R-Pa. He led the floor fight against the Hanford power provision.

The other House members are Reps. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., and Melvin Price, D-Ill., principal supporters of the provision.

couldn't keep up with the fleeing prisoner because of the darkness and his unfamiliarity with the area.

And he couldn't shoot because of the darkness and the fear of hitting other troopers stationed in the region.

Megines said that about a year and a half ago he bought some valuable guns from strangers for $1,700. He later was told by another stranger not to sell the guns. In January, they were part of a large haul taken from the Megines home.

Two weeks ago, Megines was contacted by the extortionist and given instructions. Megines called in state police.

Bloodhounds were brought to the scene, but were unable to pick up the trail.

The man who fled was described as of medium height, about 170 pounds, bald and between 35 and 40 years of age.

Bus Tragedy Survivors Land In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine survivors of last week's Swiss bus tragedy came home Tuesday, bringing with them sharp memories of their brush with death. Several said an air pocket saved them when their tour bus plunged into Lake Lucerne.

Said Pauline Hudson of Altoona, Pa.: "When I came to in the bus there was about a foot of air space. A girl rolled down a window and I got out. I just kept paddling until I got to a ledge and a man pulled me up."

"There was very little panic. There was no time for screaming. If you screamed you couldn't save yourself."

Sixteen members of the party of American tourists died last Wednesday when the bus plunged into the lake, and 19 survived.

Among the bodies recovered was that of Miss Blodwyn Llewellyn, of Summit Hill, Pa.

61, of Kingston, was heading toward Blakeslee Corners on Route 940. Behind her was a car driven by Mabel Williams, 21, Luzerne, heading in the same direction.

Mount Pocono police, who investigated the accident, said a dog ran across the road in front of the Stark vehicle.

She jammed on her brakes to avoid the dog, and the second car plowed into the rear of her car.

Miss Williams had lacerations of the nose. Her mother, Mrs. Mabel Williams, 50, was a passenger in the second car. She received a bruise of the left eye.

Damage to the Stark car was listed at $25, and to the Williams vehicle, $200.

Community's Loss

The death of Leon J. Koster, 75, an East Stroudsburg merchant for 30 years, came as a sudden shock to many of the civic-minded people with whom he had been associated in a wide range of community betterment projects over the years.

Following closely the passing of four younger men active in civic activities, Mr. Koster's death is the latest in a series of blows suffered by the community.

Mr. Koster's first love, as might be expected, was to further the progress of East Stroudsburg and its people, but his interests went far beyond the borough.

Evidence of this is the fact that he was treasurer of the Monroe County Tuberculosis Society, president of the Visiting Nurses Assn., a director of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Stroudsburg Lions Club and a leader in Temple Israel.

Both he and C. Elwood Huffman, whose death occurred last Saturday, were active in the Monroe County Community Chest and were members of the board of directors.

Because Mr. Koster stood for so many of the good things in life, his death is truly a great loss to the entire community. Dedicated men like him are not easy to find.

Friendly Coercion

On a tour of U. S. missile bases now a-building, Labor Secretary Goldberg has taken pains to explain to the unions the nature of their no-strike pledge to the Administration. He wants it understood that the pledge is entirely "voluntary"—so long as nobody breaks it.

"This is a test we are making," said Mr. Goldberg. Washington won't get tough while the pledge is kept; if it's broken, he warned, "the President will have no hesitancy in going to Congress."

What is being tested, clearly is the Administration's tactic of trying to head off militarily harmful and politically embarrassing labor disputes by simultaneously appealing to patriotism and brandishing a bludgeon.

Inevitably, the Administration had to do something about the scandalously strike-ridden missile sites. The results so far are self-evident: Where work-stoppages last year cost an average of 7,000 manhours each month, only 209 manhours were lost last month.

What should also be clear to unions generally is the willingness of even a friendly Administration to resort to compulsion. Implicit in the newly created Missile Sites Labor Commission are government controls patterned after those of World War II. Then, in the early postwar years, there was frequent government intervention in labor-management disputes.

Nowadays, talk in Washington drifts persistently in the direction of compulsory arbitration of disputes throughout the economy. Strikes, not only in defense industries but in autos and airlines as well, are officially described as "intolerable."

Perhaps the unions see nothing to fear in all this. After all, they fared pretty well in the past under the intervention of sympathetic Administrations.

Once again, they expect understanding from the White House. But the times and tempers change. Public attitudes toward unions are shifting, and political attitudes may follow suit.

At least the Administration's resort to a big stick at the missile bases should remind unions that government intervention—no matter how "friendly"—can be government coercion.

Mongolia A Diversion

Out out of China or Siberia or Turkistan, whichever you choose, is Mongolia. The Mongols have played a curious role in history.

Suddenly emerging to significance in the 12th century and conquering much of Europe and Asia and then receding to a small, insignificant collection of tribes. Genghis Khan, who brought the Mongols to power, was born in the region of Lake Baikal. He married the daughter of the chief of Karakorum, where he established his capital. Then he subdued the whole of Mongolia.

In 1211, he began to conquer North China and in due course took the entire country. He also moved westward and conquered Turkistan and the great cities of Khiva, Samarkand and Bokhara. Thus, Genghis Khan not only possessed military power but he accumulated great wealth. He then moved into Persia, the Caucasus and Russia and into India.

Having conquered so much of the world, he returned to Karakorum in 1224 and set up as a great ruler but he did not live long.

Modern Mongolia is a large country of 1,367,000 square miles, but its population is small, 2,500,000, and it is likely to remain small because much of Mongolia consists of the Gobi Desert, a land which is useful for cattle and horse grazing but for little else.

When China became a republic, Mongolia was divided into two parts, Outer and Inner. The latter part, closer to China, attracted many Chinese who introduced Chinese methods of agriculture. Urga was the capital of Mongolia and I have been on the Kalgan-Urga Road in my day. It is a land without an excitement.

It is to be noted that although the Chinese are often referred to as a Mongoloid people, they are not Mongols; nor are the Japanese. In fact, the Mongols are closer to the Turkish tribe called the Uigurs who ultimately showed up in Hungary and Finland.

Since the Russian conquest of the Amur region by Muraviev-Amursky (1858) Russia has sought to conquer the whole of Mongolia and Turkistan.

One of the earliest wars fought by China against Russia was over the ill region of Turkistan. The Amur, which became the dividing line between Siberia and China also establishes the historic fact that the Maritime Provinces of Siberia are more Chinese than Russian territory.

There is no natural boundary line between Mongolia and Siberia or Mongolia and Turkistan. Therefore the same peoples are to be found in all these areas.

Some of these people are still Shamanistic in religion; most of them are Moslems. The Mongols, up to the conquest by Soviet Russia, were Lamaistic Buddhists; that is, they took their religion from Tibet rather than from China.

And as in Tibet, an unusually large number of men and women were monks and nuns and therefore celibates; thus, keeping the population small, averaging about two per square mile. Undoubtedly, this has changed somewhat under the Communists who do not believe in religious restraints.

Increased population, however, can only produce famine as the land is not suited for the production of food and there is little or no mineral wealth. Some oil has been found in Chinese territory adjacent to Mongolia but it is not economically significant.

Mongolia is now a state, a satellite of Soviet Russia, functioning as an independent Communist country under the Soviet system. It has produced nothing in recent years to encourage one to believe that it is very different from what it was 30 or 40 years ago when it started the world as being a source of dinosaur eggs.

Owen Lattimore, an American who lived in Tientsin and very influential in the State Department, is one of the very few Americans who knows Mongolia. He is in that country now although how he got a passport to go there or what he is doing there is not known — except that Lattimore's presence in Mongolia synchronizes with the State Department's activity in favor of getting Mongolia into the United Nations.

Neither Red nor Nationalistic China supports the idea of a separate Mongolia, which, historically is a part of China. The admission of Mongolia into the United Nations is a State Department trick to divert attention from the admission of Red China. It is not attracting favorable support in Asia, although Soviet Russia is pleased with the idea.

The Pennsylvania Story

Pledges Recalled

By Mason Denison Harrisburg — It isn't mere coincidence that Pennsylvania Democrats are finding their successful 1954 and 1958 campaign chants of "economy and tax control" being played back by House and Senate Republican leaders in this hopscotch 1961 legislative session. In essence this has been the backbone of GOP strategy in the fiscal dogfights that have waffled back and forth across Capitol Hill. (Note that the bulk of the Lawrence Administration's near billion-dollar fiscal program has long ago been cleared and is now a "matter of record"—with one $3 million tax proposal still hanging fire along with the $25 million Lawrence Administration "public education step-up" tag.)

Long memorized Republicans have not forgotten the campaign pledges of 1954 when then Democrats' candidate for governor George M. Leader bitterly decried what he termed "wasteful government spending" by preceding Republican administrations and called for a reduction in governmental expenditures.

In the minds of GOP strategists this theme was one of the "clinchers" in that campaign of more than six years ago. What isn't generally known is that early in 1955 GOP leaders in their legislative strategy that year, then trying to collect their wits following their defeat of the previous November, decided to virtually copy the same theme used by Democrats in 1954.

It was scheduled for the record-breaking 1955-56 session when Republicans held control of only the Senate — a margin sufficient to fiscally hamstring the Democratic Leader Administration. However "wiser" heads as the session progressed, counseled against rigid budget restrictions in that biennium.

The thought was simply: let them hang by their own broken campaign promises and tighten the noose in the 1957 session. That is roughly what actually happened then — although the noose apparently wasn't tight enough, for Democrats again moved to the helm in 1958 with Mr. Lawrence leading the fray.

But once again Republicans are counting on the timeliness of the current "economy" session to substantiate their own platform of government cut-down and point up the fact that Democrats had proclaimed the same thing in 1954 and again in 1958, but without carrying out their proposals.

The booming budgets handed the Leader Administration during the 1955-57 & 1957-59 biennia and those of the incumbent Lawrence Administration are already a matter of record, solid record insofar as anti-administration Republicans are concerned.

Interesting sidelight: top Democratic leaders in several instances fought against a high budget during the first Democratic Leader Administration biennium — but without success. The same leadership opposed the high budget proposed for the 1957-59 biennium — without success.

It was these old pals in the Democratic camp who from experience knew full well the exact direction in which Republican strategists were shooting. They lost their fight in those "early days" incidents — and under the Lawrence Administration have literally given up.

Seemingly on the surface of the past two Democratic administrations in Pennsylvania have had popular voter appeal. Or at least that would seem to be the case judging from the fact that expenditures have gone up — and Democrats have gone into office!

In the final analysis the issue from a somewhat idealistic standpoint does boil down to one of whether taxpayers and voters are willing to shoulder a heavier and constantly increasing tax load for a return of expanded governmental services — or prefer a stable tax load with limited state services.

News From The Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton When any denomination of United States stamps is used a great deal by companies on their mail, the Post Office Department prints them in coil form as well as in the regular sheets. This is done so that they can be purchased in rolls of 500 and set in the machine made especially for coil stamps.

They have straight edges on opposite sides and are perforated on the other two sides. A horizontal coil is perforated on the top and bottom of the stamp while a vertical coil is perforated on the two sides. All United States coil stamps are perforated 10 while the sheet stamps are perforated 11 on the top and bottom and 10½ on the sides.

Canada uses the same type coils but they perforate them either 8 or 8½ and the stamps of Sweden are almost all coil issues. Stamps from booklet panes are found with three sides perforated on the stamps at the end of the pane.

The hardest coil stamps to determine are the Great Britain issues as these are only determined by the watermark. Their regular issues are watermarked from side to side and the coils are watermarked from top to bottom.

This is made possible by the way the paper is fed to the press and the only way to know if the stamp is a coil or regular is by watermarking. Incidentally you may find many of the Great Britain issues with the watermark inverted, or up side down, and this too is caused by the way the paper is sent through the machine.

All of these differences make for various varieties and the specialized collector watermarks all his stamps before putting them in the album.

The United States uses unwatermarked paper, thus it is not necessary to check our stamps after 1961 issues. Before that date two types of watermarks were used, a single line and double line watermark.

Once in a while an error is made and some issues get printed on watermarked paper like the one dollar issue of the 1938 series. One is fortunate to find one of these. If you are a specialist in U. S. issues it pays to watermark all your stamps; you may find some errors.

Bill's wife was reading the local paper when she asked Bill, "Dear what part of the body is called the yet?" "I never heard of a part of the body called anything like 'yet,'" said he. "But, dear, is says, 'Husband shoots wife; bullet in her yet.'"

McCloy To Resign

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott Washington — John J. McCloy is quitting as White House disarmament adviser.

His reasons are wholly personal. There has been no break in the relations between McCloy and President Kennedy. They are as close and cordial as when McCloy undertook his special disarmament mission.

But the 65-year-old Republican, who has held high office under every President since 1941, is eager to return to his private law practice. To do that, he resigned last winter as board chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank. But shortly thereafter he responded to Kennedy's urgent request to try to negotiate a disarmament agreement with Russia.

William Foster has been selected as McCloy's successor. A business executive who was undersecretary of commerce and deputy secretary of defense in the Truman Administration, Foster is preparing to become director of the U.S. Disarmament Administration as an unannounced consultant in the State Department.

McCloy will continue in his job until the UN General Assembly convenes next month, when the disarmament negotiations are due to be shifted there.

He told the President of his desire to return to private life when he flew back to Washington to report on his widely publicized two-day meeting with Premier Khrushchev on the Black Sea. The President voiced surprised regret.

"I can't tell you how sorry I am to hear that," said the President. "This will be a big loss to the country and to me personally. Why not think this over some more before you finally decide?"

"I've been thinking about it for some time," replied McCloy, "and my mind is quite made up. I can't continue at this indefinitely. That's out of the question. Everytime I get set to return to private life, something comes up and my plans are disrupted. I go back into harness again.

"I'm willing to serve, but there is a limit. As you know, I've been doing that for many years, and I think I'm entitled to a break. So, as you will have to get a replacement eventually, next month would be a good time to do that."

Still voicing deep regret, the President bowed to McCloy's wish.

Arthur Dean, prominent New York attorney, has assured the President he will continue as head of the U.S. delegation negotiating on the nuclear test ban treaty.

Dean has had long experience parlaying with the Communists. He participated in the protracted Panmunjon deliberations on a Korean truce—Dean is unimpressed by the Reds' dilatory tactics, but will represent the U.S. in the nuclear negotiations at the UN General Assembly that convenes September 19.

Reports From Congress

Truth In Lending

By Congressional Quarterly Washington — A controversial bill of direct interest to almost every consumer recently got a new lease on life through Kennedy Administration endorsement.

The proposal: Sen. Paul Douglas (D. Ill.) so-called "truth in lending" bill requiring merchants and money lenders to tell consumers exactly what they're being charged for credit when they buy or borrow on time.

Douglas first introduced the bill in the 2nd session of the 86th Congress. It was opposed by the Eisenhower Administration and died in committee at session's end.

With 21 co-sponsors, Douglas reintroduced the measure in the 87th Congress and during recent hearings it won strong support from the President's Council of Economic Advisers. The Federal Reserve Board and Commerce Department also gave the bill qualified approval.

Observers anticipated a rough floor fight when the bill reaches the Senate next session, but think the Kennedy stamp of approval has greatly increased its chances for eventual passage.

Pros and Cons — While the "truth in lending" bill requires anyone who extends credit to give the customer a written statement itemizing all charges, the controversial heart of the measure is a provision for the listing of a tricky amount—the simple annual interest rate.

The simple annual rate is calculated on the basis of the steadily declining unpaid balance of a monthly repayable debt rather than the original principal. For example, a bank or finance company may currently advertise a 6 per cent annual rate on a monthly payment loan; actually, the simple annual rate is close to 12 per cent because the borrower pays interest on the entire amount of the loan until it is repaid instead of on the constantly declining balance.

During the hearings before Douglas' Senate Banking and Currency Subcommittee, the manager of the Andrews Air Force Base Credit Union cited instances in which airmen thought they were paying six or seven per cent on loans when the actual rate ranged from 18 to 97 per cent.

Proponents of the bill, led by Douglas, argue that it's necessary to restrain the now rapid growth of consumer debt—estimated at $4 billion of which $42 billion is installment credit. They also say the measure, in addition to eliminating fraud, will invigorate competition in the credit market place.

Mr. Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers also give an additional reason for urging passage: the bill will have a curative effect on the economy by encouraging consumers to buy on credit during slack economic periods, when credit rates allegedly drop, and discouraging them during boom times. The Federal Reserve Board supports the bill but not the economic argument.

Opponents of "truth in lending," led by business groups, charge that the simple annual rate is virtually impossible to compute for many transactions and that the computation would be inordinately time-consuming. They contend that if the bill is passed merchants will be forced to lower interest rates and then bury credit charges in higher prices.

But the fundamental objection was probably expressed in a candid statement by Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah) during recent hearings: "The truth is that consumers have mistakenly been led to believe that 6 per cent is the fair interest charge for credit. A statement of annual rates of 18 per cent will be suicidal for retail merchants."

Dear Doctor

By Burton H. Fern, M. D. Dear Doctor: Medicines containing aspirin don't agree with me. What can I take instead?

Mrs. F. W. Dear Mrs. W.: If aspirin irritates your stomach, try "enteric coated" tablets that won't dissolve until they pass through your stomach and reach the small intestine. Even though enteric-coated aspirin isn't ready to go to work instantly, relief comes quickly.

If all aspirin disagrees with you, ask your doctor about substitutes such as acetaminophen. You don't have to swallow pain just because you can't take aspirin.

Controlling Asthma Dear Doctor: Will a chihuahua dog in the home help bad asthma?

Mrs. C. S. Dear Mrs. S.: If you're allergic to dog dandruff, even a tiny chihuahua can cause giant trouble. A comforting dog may soothe nervous tension and help control wheezes if you're not allergic to the dog. But here, greyhounds work as well as chihuahuas.

Ask your doctor about allergy shots that help control asthma in the long run!

Sleep Dreams Brain? Dear Doctor: Can too much sleep cause brain damage?

Mrs. E. C. Dear Mrs. C.: No, but brain damage can cause too much sleep!

Wrong Chapter Dear Doctor: You wrote that the Bible suggests that the sick deserve medical help, giving Matthew 7:12 as a reference.

I can't see how you could possibly interpret that verse the way you do.

Mrs. D. R. Dear Mrs. R.: The Roman numerals threw us. Right verse, wrong chapter!

Matthew 9:12 states: "But when He heard it, He said, 'They that are whole have no need of a physician, but they that are sick.'"

Salt-Free Diet Dear Doctor: Once you're on a salt-free diet, are you ever well enough to eat salt again?

Mrs. C. E. Dear Mrs. E.: That salt-free diet eases the load on your heart and lowers blood pressure. If the reason for your heart trouble or high blood pressure can be pinpointed and cured, you can once again enjoy the salt of the earth.

Ask your doctor about pills that flush salt through the kidneys and allow you to salt foods without getting into trouble!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in the The Daily Record.

Prosperous Or Depressed?

Dear Mr. Editor: Well, what are we now? Depressed area? Prosperous area?

One report tells us Pike County rates first in the state in purchase of government bonds on a per capita basis, with Monroe County fifth. That should put the Pocono area close to the top nationally!

Another report tells us that the greatest "industry" of the area, by far, encompasses the resort business — a business rated in the millions annually — which means net profit from a natural resource!

And along comes the mail with our new tax bills, considerably increased, with the placating explanation this is because of the great increase in the value of Pocono real estate!

But then, to cap them all, comes the startling news, illustrated by a photograph of a group of estimable citizens (and I mean estimable) looking delighted at the prospect of Monroe County being classified as a "distress area," and pleading to "industrialize" an economy that has nothing to offer except governmental and community handouts!

Let me make what should be an obvious statement. If the Poconos are truly a desirable resort and recreational area, few things are more likely to kill its desirability than to label it a "distress area."

Ed Wynn can never top the inspired bit that introduced him as an intrepid huntsman, rifle in hand, horn slung over his shoulder, ready to go out and bag his prey. Just before he sallied forth, he took a look at himself in a pocket mirror, recoiled, and gasped, "Thank God, I'm not in season!"

In the same show, Wynn was operating a pretzel stand when a cop told him, "Hey, mister, you can't sell those pretzels here without a license." Wynn answered, "I knew there must be some reason I couldn't sell them. Thanks for telling me what it was."

Open-Well Stair Highlights Split Design

By Jules Loh

A DRAMATIC variation of split level design has resulted in a striking exterior for this handsome four-bedroom home as well as a new and interesting way to get from one part of the house to another.

Herman H. York, architect of House of the Week B-78, placed an open-well staircase at mid-point of the house, sort of a hub around which the traffic flows to all sections of the house and each of the four levels.

"After entering the front door," said York, "you can go either to the formal living room on one side, or down a few steps to the family level. They are separate and private, but the open-well staircase design serves to open the living level to the family level."

By the same token, traffic flows conveniently from the kitchen, which has a rear entrance — another feature not ordinarily found in traditional side-to-side split level design.

In all respects, the house is designed for economy without sacrificing the space required by a four-bedroom family. (Though actually the fourth bedroom, off the family room, could serve equally well as a large den, library or music room.)

For example, the upstairs bathroom has two entrances — off the hall and off the 12 foot by 15 foot four inch master bedroom — which serves the same function as a private bath off the master bedroom. If this were not desired, the door from the bedroom could be removed and the closets enlarged. Plumbing for the upstairs bathroom, incidentally, is backed up to the kitchen plumbing for further economy.

The house contains 1,131 square feet of living area on the upper level and 419 square feet on the lower level not counting the cellar. The garage and storage area add an additional 247 square feet. Dimensions are 41 feet by 31 feet seven inches.

The kitchen of B-78 deserves special attention. Its work area is designed for convenience, with plenty of counter space; and it is large enough for a breakfast alcove which doesn't interfere with traffic through the room. A planter wall adds a decorative touch to the kitchen and dining room.

Additional Details
The living room-dining room area, a full 28 feet eight inches square, is given an additional feeling of spaciousness by a cathedral ceiling in the living room. A fireplace is an optional feature, but would add a good deal of charm to the room.

Notice the attractive shape of B-78 from the exterior. The living level protrudes from the upper level in front, providing an attractive front entrance design and accentuating the brick veneer of the living level. The brickwork flows down the front steps and is carried through on both sides of the garage door.

The rear corner of the dining room and kitchen likewise is carried through on both sides of the garage door.

Construction Of Steps Easy
ALMOST ANYBODY can be a stairbuilder, thanks to new products now available at your building supply dealer. If you are building interior stairs from the basement to the first floor, or the first floor to the attic, you can obtain steel stair-girders which enable you to place the wood risers and treads in an exact, pre-engineered pattern. If you are building steps from your outside basement entrance to the grade, you can obtain stair stringers. These can be attached to the masonry walls on the sides of the stair-well. Wood treads fit into them and make stairs with an exact rate of rise.

INTERESTING VARIATION: A striking departure from conventional side-to-side split level design provided this handsome four-bedroom home with excellent traffic circulation features as well as a dramatic exterior. A rear entrance at the kitchen (as well as the family room) is another unusual feature.

attractively designed, a great relief from the staggered boxes effect so often found in split levels today.

With its open cellar, storage space is no problem in this home. But notice the large closets as well, plus the big storage area at the rear of the garage for bicycles, lawn tools and so forth.

The downstairs lavatory is conveniently placed off the exterior wall of the family room, convenient to the backyard terrace. The terrace, another optional feature, is entered through sliding glass doors from the family room. The lavatory also has a second door from the garage, providing a "sneak passage," as architect York termed it, from the garage to the family room.

All in all, B-78 combines the advantages of a grade level family room at the rear with the features found most popular in the original side-to-side type of split level design.

Insulation Is A Top Investment

STUDIES have shown that proper home insulation can return as much as 14 percent of its original cost every year.

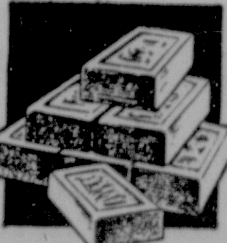

This is based on the proven ability of mineral wool, installed according to the Quality Home Requirements of the National Mineral Wool Insulation Association, to reduce fuel costs as much as 30 to 40 percent.

Actually, it doesn't take too long for savings like this to pay completely for the cost of the insulation.

Once the protective blanket of insulation pays for itself, continued savings on fuel is just like money in the bank. One reason for this is that mineral wool insulation never wears out or needs replacement. The first cost is the final cost. The initial investment remains in the house increasing its resale value, often by as much as the original cost of the insulation.

Modern astronomers believe stars may be of widely different ages. Some are subject to catastrophic explosions that produce novae and supernovae.

FLOOR PLANS: Open-well staircase design serves as hub around which traffic flows to all areas of the house and all four levels. Minimum of hall space upstairs means larger bedrooms. Also note the dual use of main bath provided by extra door from master bedroom.

Bath Fixtures Fit Any Space

THE EXTRA bath has become standard equipment in most modern homes, but it also is possible in remodeled houses, even when little space is available.

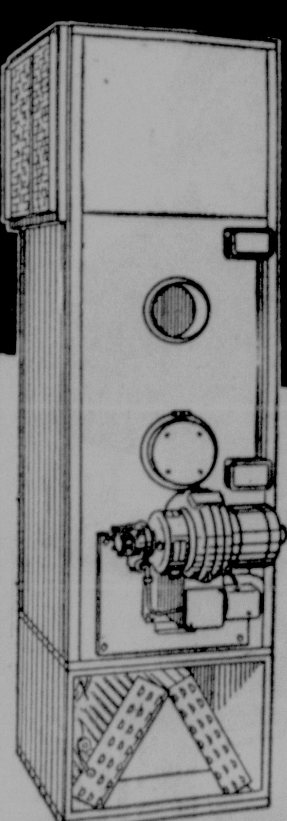

In this event, a square bathtub or a corner shower cabinet can be installed. One model, called a receptor tub, provides a shower-tub combination in an area just over a square yard. Also, scaled lavatories and water closets are available to make the most efficient use of space.

CHECK THE PRIMING

Many manufacturers of exterior hardboard ship their product already primed and ready for painting with the color and top-coat of the customer's choice. Before painting, however, check to see whether the primer has been damaged or scraped away in handling or during construction. If it has, the bare spots must be primed with house paint primer, preferably the one recommended by the manufacturer of the top coat.

Formula For Counting Floor Tile

HOME handymen can use this simple formula for figuring the number of tiles needed for a room when installing nine inches by nine inches Kentile vinyl asbestos tile, according to the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information.

Multiply the room's length by its width to get the square footage. Then double this figure and subtract 10 per cent.

Taking an 11 feet by 12 feet room, square footage would be 132. Double this would be 264. Subtract 10 per cent — 26 in round numbers — and the number of tiles needed is 238, or three boxes of 80 tiles each.

If alcoves or offsets make the walls uneven, the square footage they occupy should be added or subtracted from the total square footage before it is doubled.

HANDY STIRRER

Leg Brace Found At Gas Station

PEOPLE lose all sorts of things: Teeth, rings, money, face, even legs.

Legs? There was, and probably still is, a leg brace, affixed shoe, and attaching straps at the gas station at Seventh and Main Sts., Stroudsburg, yesterday.

It had been there about a week. Employees of the gas station found it in the station one morning, left it there, and finally put it near a telephone booth outside.

One person quipped, "If the owner gets into an argument, he won't have a leg to stand on."

Book Fair To Benefit School Fund

BRODHEADSVILLE — Mrs. Nevin Dorshimer, vice-president of the Pleasant Valley Jointure Book Fund Committee, announces a special meeting for that group at 8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 14 in the new school library.

The plans originally calling for a barbeque booth at the West End Fair have been changed and a "book fair" will be held instead. Workers scheduled for the stand are asked to maintain the old schedule of hours.

Committee personnel are urged to contact friends and neighbors for re-saleable books

Subsidy For Newlyweds Urged

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — A tax subsidy to young newly married couples was suggested Tuesday. Thomas P. Monahan, sociologist of the Philadelphia Municipal court, recommended a study of extending federal tax advantages to young newlyweds during the time when their income is likely to be low. His remarks were prepared for a panel discussion at a convention of the American Bar Association.

"The oldsters in our society now have double income tax exemptions," Monahan said. "Why not a similar provision for persons in the first five years of marriage—when the problems of living, adjusting, and supporting children are the greatest?" Monahan conceded a drastic change in the public's way of thinking would be necessary to smooth the way for such legislation. "Thus far in the United States, marriage legislation has been largely regulatory or prohibitive," he said.

The sociologist said also the nation needs a new system of social bookkeeping—a national register of all marriages and divorces. He recommended all legal recognition be withdrawn from common-law marriages — still recognized in 15 states.

A national register of marriages and divorces, similar to the nation's Social Security record system, could easily be set up, he said. Monahan said such a system would help solve the problem of bigamy.

Metropolitan Paper Tells Story Of Price's Courage

"A NEW Profile In Courage" is the headline on an article in the Philadelphia Sunday Bulletin of August 6. The profile and the courage were John Michael Price's, who died July 31.

The article recalls Mr. Price's life after his accident in an Army camp in 1943 when he snapped his spinal cord. It tells of the courage that a quadriplegic can show in his fight to live a useful life.

It tells how he slipped a ring over the thumb and forefinger of his left hand, wedged a pencil in the ring, and tapped with the eraser on the keys of an electric typewriter.

From this he started the Paraplegia News, which now has a circulation of 6,000. The newspaper led to the establishment of the Paralyzed Veterans' Association.

He contracted pneumonia two months ago, but insisted on attending the national convention of the PVA in Miami Beach last July 16. Two weeks later he was dead at 52.

The story describes his house at 240 Lee Ave., Stroudsburg.

The structure has ramps for steps and tile floors to facilitate easier rolling of his wheelchair.

He was an avid sports fan, and when he found out he couldn't watch ball games on TV because of surrounding mountains, he began Pocono TV Relay, Inc.

He also organized a writers club and a chess club, smoked cigars and liked bourbon. He said before he died that he thought he lived a better life because of his accident.

Long Speech Protests Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., held the floor Tuesday through the second day of a long speech against President Kennedy's nomination of a former Texas oil man to the Federal Power Commission.

He yielded for long stretches to other speakers, however, and was able during one respite to have a lunch of scrambled eggs and skimmed milk in the Senate cloakroom.

Proxmire said he was not filibustering, just going on record against what he termed a "shocking" move to give the oil and gas interests "their own boy on the power commission."

The nominee whose confirmation he opposes is Lawrence J. O'Connor Jr. of Houston, who has been serving as oil import administrator in the Interior Department.

"Appointing this man to the power commission," Proxmire told a meager Senate audience, "is stacking the deck, loading the dice against the householder whose gas bills are rising steadily year after year."

Proxmire, who talked through most of Monday's nine-hour Senate session and said he might go on until midnight or later Tuesday night, described O'Connor as prejudiced in favor of the industry he would help regulate as a power commission member.

He said the oil and gas industry already has a "tremendous advantage" from special tax benefits and does not need an advocate on the power commission.

Complaints Of Corruption Submitted To DA's Office

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Republican Alliance Tuesday turned over to Dist. Atty. James C. Crumlish Jr., what it said were 120 tips and citizens' complaints, some anonymous, on alleged corruption in city government.

Dr. Robert L. Johnson, chairman of the Alliance, forwarded them in a letter to Crumlish. The alliance was formed recently in a challenge to the regular city Republican organization.

"These are citizens' charges asserting irregularities, wrongdoings and corruption in city government which have been brought to our attention by the public and which demand investigation," Johnson wrote. He added:

"While they vary in gravity and not all are subject to easy investigation, we are referring all of them to you, remembering that the disclosures in the 'Travis Scandal' resulted from a single anonymous 'tip'."

Contractor Eli Travis has been indicted on 45 counts of conspiracy, obtaining money under false pretense, corrupt solicitation, bribery and making false documents.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The Antique Show and the Pocono Flower Show both open today; and one of them should bring you out from wherever you've been hiding all summer.

Since newspaper people never do things normally: days off before holidays, fidgeting during breaks, leaving before refreshments — my view of the Antique Show was during the setting-up process yesterday. However the old angle has its fascination.

Transporting antique crystal, glass and tender fabric has its problems, but they seemed to be solving them with a minimum of breakage. The youngest dealer—an 11 year old boy — was crawling around under a table arranging his antique toys. Mountains of crumpled newspapers were piling up around the glass displays.

A wooden Indian — female for heaven's sake — gleamed brightly from the back. However enough of the antiques had been unpacked to give me quite a shock. I remember when far too many of them were really used!

No fooling, the emerging popularity of the Victorian Era in antiques can age you years! All right, so they were old when we were young, but a lot of us can remember the old iron horse and wagon among our own toys — dolls with china heads — lamps with round, flower-painted globes — marble-topped tables and pitcher-and-wash bowl sets.

When antiques are no longer things that were old long before you were born, you sort of feel in the antique category yourself. However, there was nothing about the Hospital Aux. members yesterday, bustling about getting their kitchen set up — surrounded by all the stored athletic equipment from those horses to tumbling pads. However there isn't much space for the women to exercise in between orders.

How the things are going to turn out all the things listed on their menu in that space is another marvel — but knowing them, they'll do it. What I'm wondering is whether or not I should hire a wheel-chair to tour the show next time. When those tricycles I've got stored up in the attic get to be considered antiques then I'll know I should.

Pocono Playhouse

'Period Of Adjustment' Cast Praised For Fine Performance

By Gloria S. Randolph

MOUNTAINHOME — For the past decade and a half Tennessee Williams has dominated the theatrical scene with his disturbed views of life and human frailty. This week at the Pocono Playhouse an actress named Ann Wedgeworth dominates the stage as a typical Williams Southern belle of careful "upbringing".

"Period of Adjustment" is a comedy from first to last, though it has serious overtones and all the characters are emotionally insecure. Williams has turned his driving, forceful writing style with its hammering repetitions into most effective, penetrating humor.

Under John Lehne's fine direction the pace of the play is unfaltering. Miss Wedgeworth's "Isabel Haverstick" is a masterpiece of comedic acting, never overstated and perfectly timed. At times her performance is absolutely breathtaking.

The basic theme of the play is that there is hope for even the most maladjusted personality. Throughout the play the audience is aware of an undercurrent of optimism.

This is quite a departure for Williams who usually seems to be concerned with futility. Because of this subtle attitude he can get away with poking fun at infirmities without becoming distasteful.

Dane Clark plays "Ralph Bates", a war hero who has given up his individuality for materialistic reasons. He finds himself deserted by his wife when he decides to leave her father's business and find his own future.

Clark's performance is good, and very believable.

Adam Kennedy plays "George Haverstick", "Bates' service buddy whose frustrated emotional makeup has left him with a physical tremor. Kennedy projects a perfect balance of nervous energy and actual strength into the part.

In her relatively short time on stage, Rosemary Murphy's portrait of "Dorothea Bates", "Ralph's" wife is amazingly complete. Every gesture she employs is calculated to express "Dottie's" desperation and her need to belong. Miss Murphy shows the mark of a truly fine actress in everything she does.

The other members of the cast give creditable performances, if not exceptional. This is a Cheryl Crawford production and in every sense, good theater.

Charles Hammer has executed a set, this week, which is a remarkably fine example of technical skill and imagination. The properties are well chosen and the lighting and special effects are really very good. The play is not "gimmicked" but it has some difficult technical aspects. The Playhouse staff should be applauded for its smoothly coordinated handling of the production.

If you enjoy real comedy and at the same time desire a plot with some significance, rather than empty triviality, I recommend "Period of Adjustment" highly.

The language is bawdy, the situations are funny and often hilarious. This is adult theatre, beautifully acted by Miss Wedgeworth in particular and it is enormously entertaining.

Bus Accident Termed Phony

LANCASSER, Calif. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies received a report Monday that a bus containing Boy Scouts went into a mountain lake, but after investigating they termed it a phony.

Scene of the so-called accident was Jackson Lake in the San Gabriel mountains, about 40 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Forest rangers, highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers checked the shallow lake, found nothing amiss and concluded the report was a hoax.

The lake, about an acre wide, "isn't deep enough to swim in," a forest ranger said.

A sheriff's officer said of the report: "We got a telephoned report from a Mr. Ben Wilson, of a Boy Scout camp in Verdugo Pines (near Jackson Lake.) But we don't know where Mr. Wilson got his report."

He said the caller apparently was an adult.

Drivers kill and cripple more children than any disease!

We have vaccines to prevent polio... antibiotics to defeat pneumonia. Countless children have been saved from death or crippling disability by medical science. But what have we got to fight the worst child destroyer of all—the traffic accident? Only indignation—only a determination to curb careless drivers! So voice that indignation. Write your local enforcement officials and tell them:

"I support strict law enforcement!"

When your officials know that you approve their efforts to protect your children... when they know they have a united community behind them... they'll be able to quarantine and control dangerous driving like the disease it is. The records show it: Where traffic laws are strictly enforced and obeyed, deaths go down!

Break Through Found In Radar

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A generating unit described as a major breakthrough in radar was announced by the Army Tuesday.

The new generator will enable radar to pinpoint targets with 10 times the precision now available in comparable equipment, the Advanced Research Projects Agency said here.

The generator, developed by Alco Products Co., Auburn, N.Y., and Westinghouse, will be used this summer to observe intercontinental ballistic missiles fired over the Pacific as targets for the Nike-Zeus antimissile missile.

The boom tree thrives only in the central desert of Mexico's Baja California.

Dear Abby

So What's Your Problem

Dear Abby: I can't mention any names, but I would like your opinion of the following situation: A well-to-do, recently retired man complained that he didn't appreciate sitting home alone five afternoons a week while his wife went out and played cards. She told him she loved playing cards, and refused to give it up. He asked her how much she could win in a good day. She told him about $10. So now he pays her $10 a day for every day she stays home with him.

A FRIEND
Dear friend: A man who has to "pay" his wife to stay home with him is in pretty sad shape. But if she is satisfied, and he is happy, why don't we keep our noses out of their business?

Dear Abby: I am a woman, 42, and am expecting my tenth child. The trouble is that my eldest is expecting her second child. And, Abby, the whole town is talking. They are saying I don't want to get old, and that the only reason I am pregnant is because my daughter is. This is not true. My husband and I love children, and have always wanted a big family. People say that now that we are grandparents we should leave the business of increasing the population to the younger generation. We are able to support our children. What should I tell my jealous friends?

PREGNANT GRANDMA
Dear Grandma: What makes you think you have to tell them anything? A married woman needs no "excuse" for having a baby.

Dear Abby: My husband has a thick head of hair of which he is very proud. But he refuses to shampoo it more than once every six months. He uses a lot of hair oil, and claims that water will make his hair fall out. We have quarreled about this frequently, and I can't get anywhere with him. Our pillow cases are stained, and his head smells of rancid oil. Can you help me convince him that he should wash his hair more often?

TIRED OF ARGUING
Dear Abby: A grown man should know that if he wants to keep his hair, he has to keep it clean. If he is too stubborn to take your word for it, urge him to ask his barber.

Confidential to Tom: Young men with mathematical minds usually like figures.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of The Daily Record. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Revolutionary Harbor
BREMEN, Germany (AP)—A group of architects has announced plans for a revolutionary harbor basin here that would be covered by a huge plastic roof nearly a mile long. The designers say the enclosed port would make loading and unloading independent of weather and eliminate the need for quayside warehouses.

Soft Drink Tax Urged For Schools

TWO HOUSE members proposed a two-cents-a-bottle tax on soft drinks Monday.

The measure was sponsored by Republican Representatives George K. Haudenschild, Allegheny, and Evelyn G. Henzel, Montgomery.

The tax was one of several studied to try to raise the $28 million a year needed to finance the governor's education committee proposals.

The governor proposed two alternatives: a two per cent tax on unearned income, or a one per cent tax on intangible personal property.

Firemen's Group Plans For School

THE LAST regular meeting of the Monroe County Firemen's Association, before the opening of the 1961 Fire School, will be held tomorrow night at the West End Fire House in Brodheadsville.

The Fire School is slated for Sept. 30 and October 1. Association president Herman Meinert and Fire School Director Robert Phillips strongly urged that all firemen and officers attend.

The school, sponsored by the Monroe County Commissioners and hosted this year by the Stroud Township Fire Co., is in the final stages of planning.

U. S. Delays Counterblow

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

The United States is delaying a political counteroffensive to which the Soviet Union has laid itself wide open in Europe.

Just what the counteroffensive amounts to has not yet been revealed and perhaps it has not yet taken concrete form.

The major effort at the moment, as clearly indicated by Secretary Dean Rusk's tactics in Paris, is to make the "not one step backward" policy of the Kennedy administration the accepted policy of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with emphasis on military posture.

This is not to be accomplished by waving a wand, one reason being the expense, and another being the vociferous conviction in many quarters that negotiation must go at least hand in hand, if not ahead, of military containment.

This negotiation-mindedness even goes to the extent, with some people, of believing that diplomatic recognition of East Germany should be paid for Soviet guarantees of the status quo in Berlin.

This the governments are not about to do, but they cannot completely ignore the pressure, despite the fact that the synthetic crisis over Berlin created by Soviet Premier Khrushchev is with itself clearly revelatory of the value of Soviet guarantees.

The delay in putting forward demands of a political nature to counter the Soviet offensive is not entirely due to the fact that diplomatic decisions have not been reached. They could be rushed up

It's Christmas For The Joker

MARTINSBURG, Pa. (AP) — It's Christmas time in August at the home of Paul Dilling in this Western Pennsylvania community.

When he and his wife pulled in to the driveway Sunday night after an uncomfortably warm trip home from vacation, they were startled by strings of lights blinking all over the outside of the house.

Inside, they found a large Christmas tree with all the trimmings crowded into the living room. And the other rooms shared in the holiday spirit—they glistened with a coating of artificial snow.

Mailman Dilling is the town's practical joker. It seems the townspeople have played a joke on him to end all jokes.
